Santa Monica antique store acquired for mixed-use development

Jan 20, 2013

Author: Roger Vincent LA Times

These buildings on Lincoln Boulevard in Santa Monica are set to be replaced by apartment and retail complexes. (Marcus & Millichap)

One of L.A.'s most active apartment developers has purchased the site of the Wertz Brothers Antique Mart in Santa Monica as dramatic changes are planned for properties near a future stop on the light rail Expo Line.

Wertz Realty Investments sold the antique store building and parking lot at 1613 Lincoln Blvd. to Century West Partners for more than $11 million, public documents indicate.

Century West plans to incorporate the site into its proposed Lincoln Boulevard Collection, which is to be comprised of four apartment buildings on Lincoln Boulevard with a combined total of 421 units. The complex is to have shops and restaurants on the ground floor.

City officials have approved mixed-use development around stops on the Expo Line that is to connect Santa Monica with downtown Los Angeles in 2016.

“They hope this will make downtown Santa Monica more pedestrian friendly,” said real estate broker Patrick Wade, who helped broker the deal and two others last year near the intersection of Lincoln and Colorado Avenue with his partner Alex Kozakov.

The three sales — with a combined value of million for a total of 102,000 square feet — demonstrated a jump in appeal for the Santa Monica neighborhood. The prices were as much as seven times higher than previously assessed values.

“The elevated apartment renter demand in Santa Monica combined with the tech business growth and high barriers to entry for retailers make the city one of the most desirable real estate markets in the nation for developers,” Wade said.

Century West, which is which is headed by developers Steve Fifield and Michael Soroichinsky, has other mixed-used residential projects planned in Santa Monica as well as in downtown Los Angeles and the Koreatown district.

Steve and Randy Fifield: Creating a top real estate development company in Chicago

Steve and Randy Fifield
Fifield Companies
Chicago

The husband-and-wife team of Steve and Randy Fifield have combined to make Chicago's Fifield Companies one of the premier commercial real estate developers in the country.

In the last 30 years, Steve Fifield, the company's chairman and chief executive officer, has been recognized as one of Chicago's most prolific developers of urban in-fill high-rise office and residential buildings.

During his career, he has built more than 8 million square feet of office developments. This includes 10 office buildings in downtown Chicago, including the Pepsico regional headquarters at 555 W Monroe, USG World headquarters at 550 W Adams, the Chicago Transit Authority's headquarters and the landmark renovation of the city's prized Civic Opera building.

Randy Fifield, the company's vice chairman and principal, has also made a positive impact on the city and her industry. In 1999, she initiated Fifield's residential focus beginning with the seven-building Gotham Lofts and Clinton Complex comprising 460 loft condominiums in Chicago. She also spearheaded the first high-rise rental tower in the West Loop neighborhood of Chicago, 180 N. Jefferson. That project brought 283 units to the neighborhood and helped spur future development in what has become one of the city's hottest neighborhoods.

From there, Randy Fifield grew Fifield Companies' residential portfolio to 5,000 units of high-rise apartments and condominiums in Chicago, Los Angeles, Las Vegas, southeast Florida and Waikiki.

And Fifield Companies is far from done, in either Chicago or the rest of the country. The firm plans another million-plus square feet of offices on two more West Loop sites at 601 W. and 625 W. Monroe St.

Expanding its reach outside Chicago, in 2010 the Fifields joined Michael Sorochinsky to form Century West Partners, a Los Angeles-based multi-family developer. Century West boasts 12 projects made of more than 1,600 units in progress in Los Angeles and Santa Monica, including the Avant Apartments in downtown Los Angeles, K2 LA in that city's Koreatown neighborhood and Gibson House in Santa Monica.

Century West is processing another four projects for approval in Santa Monica on 2nd Street, Lincoln Boulevard and Wilshire Avenue for 2013 starts.
